

NEW FROM VICTRIX! METAL EARLY NAPOLEONIC RUSSIANS 1805-1808

Victrix are really pleased to announce the first releases of our metal Early Napoleonic Russian range.

These miniatures can be used to refight some of the greatest Napoleonic battles of the age such as Austerlitz, Eylau and Friedland, from the Pratzen heights to the frozen wastes of Poland. Eylau could be said to be Napoleons first major check in battle, as the French ground themselves down against the solid and steadfast ranks of the Russian infantry. A quality the Russian infantryman was well renowned for.

Our first releases consist of Russian musketeers, Grenadiers and Pavlovski Grenadiers marching, infantry foot command and mounted colonels. We are currently working on the command packs for the Grenadiers and Pavlovski Grenadiers, expected to be ready by late early November. We will also be adding Imperial Guard and Chasseurs. These miniatures will be ideal to use alongside our upcoming range of plastic Austrians (more news of these 4 sets coming soon!)
